DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 3-9 and 12-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. These claims still do not clearly define the inventive structure, and contain logical inconsistencies as to the number or presence of the electrostatic protection elements and the associated fuses. For example, unlike the recitation in claim 1, in claim 3 it is not clear whether a single chip (that is, when only one chip is present) has more than one electrostatic protection element. Claim 3 recites that each chip has an input circuit, and that each input circuit comprises "second to n-th" electrostatic protection elements. Furthermore, in the clause beginning on the fourteenth line of claim 3, this clause specifically recites that even in the case where there is only one chip is present, "said wiring and said second to n-th electrostatic protection elements are connected to each other through said second to n-th fuses." Thus, even though the "n-th" term refers to a plurality of chips, and when only one chip is present, there shouldn't be any n-th protection elements or n-th fuses, claim 3 still refers to these n-th elements in the context of a single chip.

This confusion also exists in all of the subsequent claims with the exception of dependent claims 10 and 11 which depend on claims 1 and 2.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

Claims 1-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Chittipeddi et al (6,556,409). This reference appears to teach the structure recited in claims 1, 2, 10 and 11, and insofar as understood, claims 3-9 and 12-18. For example, Chittipeddi shows, for example in FIG. 1b, a semiconductor device with an input pad (105) and, as described in claim 1 of the reference, what may be first and second electrostatic protection elements. Chittipeddi interposes an enable/disable element between the bond pad wiring and the second electrostatic protection element. As stated in col. 4, l. 29-32, this enable/disable element may be a fusible link, as claimed.

Since Chittipeddi also uses first and second electrostatic protection elements, forming one fuse between each protection element and the wiring would be within the scope of the reference's disclosure.
